EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Archaeological Research Services Ltd was commissioned by DeTrafford to undertake an archaeological desk-based assessment at the site of the former Phoenix Works, Ellesmere Street, Hulme, Greater Manchester. This assessment was carried out in advance of a planning application for a residential-led development providing 237 dwellings, commercial floorspace and public realm.

The site was once the location of a number of 19th century residential dwellings fronting Ellesmere Street, Bentinck Street, Cawdor Street and Church Street, with the buildings fronting Bentinck Street and Ellesmere Street likely having been utilised for commercial purposes as well as residences. Excavations to the south, east and within the south-eastern corner of the site have revealed the potential for the foundations, cellars and street features of different types of 19th century housing to survive within this area of Hulme, though survival appears to be dependent upon the level of truncation of later 20th century development. It is unknown what state of preservation the buildings were in post-Second World War, with the majority of the buildings within the site no longer present by the 1954 Ordnance Survey plan. It is possible that post-war clearances across much of the PDA may have removed more below-ground remains, depending upon the level of damage caused by the pair of explosive bombs during the war, though the present of the cobbled surface of Cawdor Street within the site suggests there is still the medium potential for below-ground remains to survive within the site boundary.

It is recommended that a phase of targeted trial trenching comprising two trenches be carried out within the centre and southern part of the site to assess the survival and nature of any below-ground archaeological remains in particular those houses fronting Cawdor Street and Church Street. Depending upon the results of the trial trenching it may be appropriate to carry out targeted open area excavation to further record any significant surviving archaeological remains.

1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 Project and Planning Background

Archaeological Research Services Ltd was commissioned by DeTrafford to undertake an archaeological desk-based assessment at the site of the former Phoenix Works, Ellesmere Street, Hulme, Greater Manchester. This assessment was carried out in advance of a planning application for a residential-led development providing 237 dwellings, commercial floorspace and public realm.

1.2 Site Description

The 'red line boundary' of the proposed development area (hereafter 'PDA') is depicted by a red polygon on Figure 1 and is c.0.28ha in area. The site is bounded to the north by Ellesmere Street, the east by the Roof Gardens residential complex, to the west by the Gallery Gardens/Block A site and to the south by the construction works for the Chester Road/Block C site. The site is currently occupied by a single building, the former Phoenix Works, which fronts Ellesmere Street to the north and extends south from Ellesmere Street to the former site of Cawdor Street to the south. The remainder of the site is utilised as temporary offices and storage for the adjacent construction works. The site is centred at NGR SJ 82783, 97193 (Figures 1 and 2).

1.3 Geology

The underlying solid geology of the PDA comprises sandstone of the Chester Formation, sedimentary bedrock formed approximately 247 to 250 million years ago in the Triassic Period when the local environment was previously dominated by rivers. This is overlain by superficial deposits sand and gravels of Devensian Glaciofluvial Sheets Deposits (BGS 2020).

2 AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

The principal aims of this assessment are to produce a report detailing any archaeological potential of the PDA, and to assess the potential impacts of the proposed development upon any buried and upstanding archaeological remains, historic buildings and to assess their significance. The following objectives will contribute towards accomplishing this aim:

- ♦ To collate and assess existing information about the historic environment within the study area and to determine as fully as possible from the available evidence the nature, survival, quality, extent and importance of any archaeological remains and any upstanding buildings/structures within the PDA.
- ♦ To provide an assessment of areas of archaeological potential and survival based on the above research and assess the potential for the use of particular investigative techniques in order to aid the formulation of any necessary mitigation strategy, including further evaluation, excavation, and/or preservation of archaeological remains.
- ♦ To assess, where possible from the available sources, the extent of any ground disturbance associated with any previous intrusive development.

3 METHOD STATEMENT

The DBA was undertaken in accordance with the guidelines set out in The Chartered Institute for Archaeologists' Standards and Guidance for Historic Environment Desk Based Assessment (CIfA 2020a) as well as in line with guidance received from the Greater Manchester Archaeological Advisory Service (GMAAS) Heritage Management Director (Archaeology).

The approach to the assessment of significance is that set out in Conservation Principles (English Heritage 2008), which states that the significance of heritage assets derives from the 'heritage values' that they possess, which may be evidential, historical (either illustrative or associative), aesthetic or communal. It is further outlined in Annexe 1 of Scheduled Monuments & Nationally Important but Non-Scheduled Monuments (DCMS 2013) which states that 'monuments can have both archaeological and historic interest and derive significance from both their physical presence and their setting. The following principles should be used to gauge the importance of heritage assets: period, rarity, documentation/finds, group value, survival/condition, fragility/vulnerability, diversity, and potential' (DCMS 2013, 10-11).

Reference is also made to 'heritage significance' as described in the National Planning Policy Framework (NPPF), which is defined as the 'value of a heritage asset to this and future generations because of its heritage interest. That interest may be archaeological, architectural, artistic or historic. Significance derives not only from a heritage asset's physical presence, but also from its setting' (MHCLG 2019, 71).

3.1 Information Sources

The following sources of information were consulted to inform this assessment:

- ♦ Previous archaeological investigation reports within the immediate vicinity of the PDA.
- ♦ Google Earth and Bing online historical satellite imagery.
- ♦ Groundsure Historic Mapping Report for historic Ordnance Survey maps
- ♦ The British Geological Survey onshore digital maps at 1:50 000 scale (DiGMapGB-50 – WMS).
- ♦ Various other relevant books, journals and publications identified during the course of the assessment, details of which can be found in the references section of the report.
- ♦ A site walkover to Historic England Level 1 standard was undertaken in fine conditions on 19th October 2020.

3.2 Limitations to Assessment

Limitations to this assessment have been outlined below, in line with CIfA's (2020b) 'Coronavirus challenges: standards and guidance advice' and Standards and Guidance for Historic Environment Desk-Based Assessment (CIfA 2020a)

- ♦ The Greater Manchester and Lancashire Archives for additional historic maps, plans and other documents relevant to the PDA.

- ♦ The National Register for the Historic Environment (NRHE) maintained by Historic England Archives.

4 BASELINE DATA

4.1 Historic Map Regression

A number of desk-based assessments have been carried out for site within the vicinity of the PDA, one of which includes the south-eastern corner of the PDA, which has provided a thorough chronology of the landscape of this area of Greater Manchester (Price 2011; 2014; 2015; 2016; Madigan 2016; Burpoe 2017). As such, in consultation with the GMAAS Heritage Management Directory (Archaeology) that this assessment focusses on the post-medieval – modern history of the PDA by examining available historic mapping for the site and identifying potential areas of surviving below-ground remains.

One of the earliest published maps that shows part of the area of Hulme in detail is William Green's 1787-94 Plan of Manchester and Salford. Whilst this map only includes the northern-most part of the PDA within its extent, it does indicate that at least part (and likely the whole) of the PDA was under ownership of the Duke of Bridgewater. The Duke of Bridgewater constructed one of the first industrial canals within Manchester in 1764, which connected his mines at Worsley to Manchester. This part of the canal within the Hulme area is located c.100m to the north of the PDA.

Green's map also depicts a bridge and road leading from Hulme Hall south-east, which appears to pass immediately to the west of the PDA boundary. Hulme Hall itself, located c.175m to the north-west of the PDA, was once the site of a c.16th century (or earlier) half-timbered house, and was the former seat of Hulme Hall manor. The building itself was demolished in the 1840s after years of neglect. It would appear that this road and bridge provided the main access to the Hall from the south.

Bancks & Co.'s 1828 Plan of Manchester is the first plan to show the area of the PDA in detail. This plan confirms that the road identified on Green's Map, which is revealed to be Hulme Hall Lane, does indeed run adjacent the western boundary of the PDA. The map shows the PDA itself within a single field situated between the Bridgewater Canal to the north and Chester Road to the south. No structures are depicted within the PDA or the field, with the northern side of Chester Road as a whole appearing largely undeveloped, with the exception of St. George's Church c.140m to the east of the PDA.

The population of Manchester quadrupled between 1821 and 1851. As a result, vast numbers of houses had to be built so by 1851, there were almost 50,000 houses in the city (Nevell 2011, 596). Manchester was notorious for its slum dwellings, with many of the buildings built with a poor standard of construction. Many of the houses built in the late 18th century were designed for a single family, but by the mid-19th century, many were housing two or more families (Miller & Wild 2015, 34). Dwellings were often small and cramped, often back-to-back rows of houses with little light and no sanitation. Many families occupied the cellar rooms of houses and by 1835, about 12% of the working-class population lived in cellar dwellings (Miller & Wild 2015).

Attempts were made locally to combat the problem of housing conditions, with a local police act passed in 1844 requiring that all new homes must have toilets provided and banned the building of back-to-back houses. In 1853, a local by-law banned the building and habitation of cellars, and by 1867, a local act required landlords to renovate and change the use of existing back-to-back dwellings (Nevell 2014).

The 1848 and 1850 Ordnance Survey (OS) plans both depict the development of this area of Manchester, with the most notable change being the re-alignment of Hulme Hall Lane to the west of the PDA. The construction of a Saw Mill/Hulme Works to the north of the PDA in the 1840s truncated the line of the original road, the alignment of which is still depicted on both OS plans. Further development is depicted to the east and west of the PDA, with this area north of Chester Road is still largely undeveloped, though a footpath is depicted to the north of the PDA, which roughly follows the alignment of present day Ellesmere Street.

By the mid-late 1850s, development began to expand along the northern side of Chester Road, with the area of the PDA likely seeing its first structures by the 1870s. Available trade directories (Appendix 1) and census returns (Appendix 2; Table 1 below) indicate that by 1871 buildings have been constructed and are largely occupied along all of Church Street, the south side of Cawdor Street and the lower part of Bentinck Street, with 152 people living within the PDA boundary. Cornish's 1876 Plan of Manchester is the first plan to depict the earliest phases of development within the PDA, with construction depicted along Church and Cawdor Streets.

Table 1: Census Returns Summary

Census Year	Total population within PDA boundary	Place of Birth
		England	Wales	Scotland	Ireland	Other
1871	152 Total Residents	145	3	-	4	-
1881	333 Total Residents	304	5	6	17	1 Corfu
1891	295 Total Residents	287	1	2	5	-
1901	314 Total Residents	298	2	9	5	-
1911	224 Total Residents	213	1	1	8	1 Germany

By the time of the 1881 census return (Appendix 2), the total population within the PDA has almost doubled since the 1871 census, with construction and occupation of new buildings along the north side of Cawdor Street, Ellesmere Street and the remainder of Bentinck Street. Slater's 1886 New Plan of Manchester and Salford depicts the establishment of these new streets, with Ellesmere Street following the alignment of the earlier footpath, though the development depicted on this plan is contradictory with the entries on the 1881 census return and 1880s' trade directories.

The 1891 OS plan is the first plan to depict the site completely developed and is also the first plan to show the various terraced dwellings within the PDA in detail. As the buildings within the PDA were all constructed after the aforementioned acts that required privies and banned back-to-back and cellar dwellings, it would appear that the houses fronting Cawdor Street within the PDA are small through-houses with individual rear yards and narrow alleyways behind the houses. The buildings fronting Church Street, Ellesmere Street and Bentinck Street are substantially larger than the buildings fronting Cawdor Street, and are likely terraced dwellings with back yards and outbuildings, with the latter streets possibly also utilised as commercial dwellings as well as family residences.

The PDA appears to remain relatively unchanged during the early part of the 20th century, with the most noticeable changes being the loss of two adjacent dwellings, the first fronting Cawdor Street and second fronting Church Street.

The Manchester Bomb damage maps (Sheet 104 pt.10) of the 1940s show that the houses on Cawdor Street within the PDA were hit by two high-explosive bombs, first during the Christmas Blitz in December 1940 and second during a bombing raid in March 1941, with the 1954 OS plan showing nos. 45-71 (odds) Ellesmere Street, 54-74 (evens) and 49-81 (odds) Cawdor Street, and 58-76 (evens) Church Street are no longer present, suggesting that the ruins were demolished soon after the raids.

By the 1963 OS plan, a large rectangular building labelled 'Works' has been constructed within the northern part of the PDA, fronting Ellesmere Street and extending south almost to Cawdor Street. Three adjacent structures have also been building to the south of Cawdor Street, through it does not appear they are residential dwellings. This plan also indicates that Church Street has been renamed to 'Cobley Street'.

By the 1976 OS plan, the remaining 19th century structures within the PDA have been demolished. A new 'estate' pub replaced the old Star Inn and was constructed at some point in the mid-1970s as part of the regeneration projects around Hulme (Potts 1997) and is first depicted on the 1976 OS plan. This pub was also called The Star Inn and was larger than the original pub, stretching between Cawdor Street and Church Street. It is not clear exactly when The Star Inn was demolished although it must have been during the late 1990s as it is shown on the 1994 OS plan, but can no longer be seen in Google Earth aerial photography from 2000 (Trow 2016).

Presently, the site is occupied by a single long structure fronting Ellesmere Street, the former Phoenix Works, built by the 1963 OS plan. The building and site are currently used as a base of operations for the construction works currently being carried out along Chester Road to the south of the PDA.

4.2 Walkover Survey

A site walkover was undertaken in fine conditions on 19th October 2020. The aims of the walkover survey were to provide an up-to-date account of the site conditions within the PDA and to identify any of the features noted during the historic map regression. A map has been produced showing the location and direction of each photograph (Figure 3). The site is presently bounded to the north by Ellesmere Street, the east by the Roof Gardens residential complex,, to the west by the Gallery Gardens/Block A site and to the south by the construction works for the Chester Road/Block C site.

The site itself is currently occupied by a single rectangular structure fronting Ellesmere Street, the former Phoenix Works, which extends south from Ellesmere Street to the northern part of the former Cawdor Street. This building does not possess a basement. The cobbled surface of the former Cawdor Street can be seen in areas within the PDA beneath broken areas of modern hardstanding. The remainder of the site is currently being utilised as temporary offices and storage for the adjacent construction works, with the ground surface of the site largely covered by modern hardstanding. Apart from the areas of the cobbles of Cawdor Street, the site walkover did not identify any additional upstanding remains of historical significance (Photographs 1 - 8).

4.3 Previous Archaeological Investigations

A number of archaeological assessments have been carried out both within the immediate vicinity and within the PDA itself throughout the last 5 years (Figure 4). The following is a brief synopsis of the invasive investigations that have been carried out within this area, with a particular focus on the works that have been carried out within the PDA itself (Murphy 2014; Trow 2016).

In 2016, two phases of archaeological investigation were carried out adjacent and within the south-eastern part of the PDA at the 'Chester Road, Block C' site. The archaeological works revealed a number of well-preserved remains of the former dwellings fronting Chester Road to the south of the PDA and also confirmed that these dwellings did indeed have cellars. Excavation of dwellings fronting the southern half of Church Street revealed the partially preserved foundations of the walls of these houses, with no cellars present. The construction of the Church Street dwellings seemed particularly poor, with all exposed walls being only a single brick thick (Trow 2016).

Within the PDA itself, the former location of the Star Inn at No.8 Bentinck Street as well as the terraced houses immediately to the south-east fronting Church Street were also sampled as part of the 2016 archaeological works. Unfortunately, due to the rebuilding of The Star Inn in the 1970s, the 19th century Star Inn and adjacent terraced houses were truncated, with no traces of these early remains encountered (Trow 2016).

Two phases of archaeological works were also carried out in 2014 at the corner of Ellesmere and Bentinck Streets, immediately to the east of the PDA. These works revealed the well-preserved remains of the cobbled street surface of Cawdor Street and the cellars of former terraced houses which fronted the southern part of Cawdor Street. The excavations revealed evidence that these cellars were also used as dwellings. Excavation works between Cawdor Street and Ellesmere Street to the north revealed that the 19th century remains in this area were very damaged by modern disturbances (Murphy 2014).

5 ASSESSMENT OF THE SIGNIFICANCE OF AFFECTED HERITAGE ASSETS

The PDA was once the location of a number of 19th century residential dwellings fronting Ellesmere Street, Bentinck Street, Cawdor Street and Church Street, with the buildings fronting Bentinck Street and Ellesmere Street likely having been utilised for commercial purposes as well as residences. Whilst the significance of these assets cannot be quantified or assessed without field evaluation, any buried archaeological remains that may survive within the PDA will be vulnerable to damage and destruction by the proposed development although the survival and condition of any such remains is not known at present. It is likely that these remains would be of local significance, due to the evidential, illustrative historical values and archaeological interest they could possess.

The Archaeological Research Framework for North West England (Brennand 2007) identifies that further work into working class housing in Greater Manchester and Lancashire is needed, including the need to excavate urban cellars to examine life ‘below stairs’ in the middle class house and cellar dwellings and workshops in working class houses. Although the corpus of excavated workers’ housing is gradually increasing, there are still many unanswered questions about the differences in the construction of these dwellings. The Framework also recommends that ‘where threatened with possible redevelopment, excavations are required of now undeveloped and cleared former working-class areas regarded as slums’ (Brennand 2007, 147).

6 ASSESSMENT OF POTENTIAL IMPACTS

Potential direct physical impacts to heritage assets during the demolition and construction phase include the following.

- ♦ Removal or truncation of heritage assets during ground works, site clearance and construction (e.g. removal of extant buildings and hardstanding, erection of fencing, traffic movement).
- ♦ Damage to buried archaeological remains due to rutting from construction traffic movement.
- ♦ Other groundworks associated with the construction of a new mixed-use development, such as foundation and service trenches, which have the potential to damage or destroy below-ground features or deposits of cultural heritage value, should they be present.

Excavations to the south, east and within the south-eastern corner of the PDA have revealed the medium-high potential for the foundations, cellars and street features of different types of 19th century housing to survive within this area of Hulme, though survival appears to be dependent upon the level of truncation of later 20th century development. It is unknown what state of preservation the buildings were in post-Second World War, with the majority of the buildings within the site no longer present by the 1954 OS plan. It is possible that post-war clearances across much of the PDA may have removed more below-ground remains, depending upon the level of damage caused by the pair of explosive bombs during the war, though the present of the cobbled surface of Cawdor Street within the PDA suggests there is still the medium potential for below-ground remains to survive within the site boundary (Figure 5).

7 RECOMMENDATIONS

It is recommended that a phase of targeted trial trenching comprising two trenches be carried out within the centre and southern part of the site to assess the survival and nature of any below-ground archaeological remains in particular those houses fronting Cawdor Street and Church Street. Depending upon the results of the trial trenching it may be appropriate to carry out targeted open area excavation to further record any significant surviving archaeological remains.
