Comment Reasons:

Comment:I've just watched the video which highlights the exciting plans and additions under proposal. They certainly look impressive. Many people from different parts of the country travel into Manchester to visit the arena and its central location is especially convenient for people who have arrived by train at Victoria Station plus Piccadilly is only a short tram ride away and a walkable distance. The main bus stations are close by too. Manchester city centre has many superb shops, stores, restaurants and pubs. This is the vibrant heart of the city. I don't want to see some of the life sucked out of the city centre. It is possible to build too many new facilities. Is a brand new build really worth the cost and the disruption involved?
