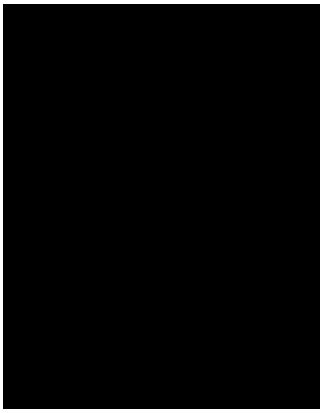
I am confirming that the Unit will function as a part of the main household and be used by an individual who still resides, in the main household.

It will just be a place for the kids to set up their games area, keep a pool table, their PC and games consoles in etc. and when they have their friends around they can all hang out in that unit.

They will still live eat within the main household building itself. The unit will just work as their games / work/ home office and rest area.


Regards.
