Revision

The proposed installations would not be permanent, and the partitions would be fully demountable ensuring the room can be returned to its existing form at the necessary time. The works are completely reversible and would not impact adversely the original layout of the building.

The frame would be attached to the walls, floor and ceiling using limited fixings enabling ease of restoration when dismantled. They can be installed without harming the fabric of the building. Furthermore, given the nature of the partitions and the limited number of fixings required, the works are completely reversible.
