Hi Cameron

I think this reads a lot better than the original version, although I have spotted a few minor typos – these are marked up on the attached.

It's absolutely no concern of mine as to the logos that are displayed on the panel but, as I mentioned previously, I'm surprised that none of the sponsors are represented.

Kind regards

Ian

Good Afternoon Ian,

Thanks for sharing the updated board with us. Have you been able to review this updated panel yet? We would like to understand what final steps need to be taken to get a final version submitted for planning, ideally for before the end of this week.

Good morning Cameron

I returned a batch of comments on the information panel to the design team at Salford Archaeology last week and have just received the revised draft (copy attached). It looks similar at a glance, but there were a number of slight inaccuracies / ambiguities embedded in the original text. I'll review the updated panel today (I have literally just received it), although one immediate question concerns the logos – I'd be surprised if it is just the University of Salford that is to be acknowledged, or is that correct?

Kind regards

Ian

Great weekend, thanks, and I hope you did too.

As we discussed last week, I've got a couple of minor comments on the panel (which I can share with Salford Archaeology directly, if that's the most efficient way forward) but I could really do with see the plan showing where the panel is to be located – you said you'd send one through, but I haven't received it?

Good Afternoon Ian,

Hope you're well.

Further to the information Jemma had sent you previously, please see linked the full size information board for completeness.

We've been advised that the content and design of the board was in the first instance developed alongside Salford Archaeology, as an output of the archaeological site investigation and in turn reviewed by GMAAS.

If you have any questions then please don't hesitate to ask. Thanks!

Good morning Jemma

Thank you very much for your email, and for the gentle reminder that I completely failed to respond to your previous message – I'm so sorry for the oversight on my part.

The size of the proposed information panel (A1 landscape) is perfect and the specification is impressive and certainly in line with what I had hoped to see. I can't read the words in the copy of the illustrated artwork that you kindly shared, but the layout looks good with what appears to be a good balance of images against text. I might suggest from a glance that there are perhaps a few too many words, but this is a relatively minor detail and I will be pleased to work on the text with the authors (I assume this is Salford Archaeology?) to enable a finalised design to be submitted in time to accompany the application for condition discharge.

I would be interested to learn where about on the site it is proposed to install the panel.

With kindest regards

Ian

Hi Ian

Hope you're well.

Following discussions with Dave Roscoe and Tony Mitchell at MCC on New Victoria (ref: 128667/JO/2020) it has been agreed that a historic information board will be provided on the site, instead of progressing with public artwork – there is currently a live NMA application (ref: 134166/NMC/2022) to formally address this, which requests details of the information board be submitted to the LPA prior to occupation.

The client team are keen to get some initial feedback and understand expectations for what information will be required – given your capacity as the archaeological consultee are you able to review the attached and provide any further guidance.

We'll be looking to discharge the condition over the next few months once the NMA has been formally determined – the condition will be batched up alongside other conditions hence it may not land for a couple of months – this should also hopefully provide the client with sufficient time to pull together / ensure all the necessary information / details is included.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Many thanks
