Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?Cld=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?CId=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

This letter is to let you know about the following planning application:

Application number: 145555/JO/2026

Description: Variation of Condition 2 (specified plans) and 23 (landscape) attached to planning permission 144433/JO/2025 to provide information on boundary treatment and amendments to pedestrian entrance paths.

Location: Land At Former Spire Hospital, Russell Road, Manchester, M16 8AJ

Applicant: Nicky Llyod, Great Places Housing Group

Ward: Whalley Range Ward

Information regarding this planning application can be viewed and commented on via the City Council's website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning/publicaccess. Alternatively, details can be viewed by using the online system at any library during opening hours.

If you have any comments to make, please write to me by 29 April 2026. There are notes on the back of this letter that may help you decide what you want to say and a guide is available on our website at www.manchester.gov.uk/planning. All replies are carefully considered before any decision is made.

Many decisions are taken by me on the Council's behalf. The others are taken by the Planning Committee, and you may attend their meetings and speak if you wish. Please note you will not be informed of the Committee date; the agenda for the is published 7 working days before the meeting on the Council's website on the Planning Committee page which will include details of how to register to speak. <https://democracy.manchester.gov.uk/ieListMeetings.aspx?Cld=151&Year=0>

Please note any comments you make will be placed on a publicly available case file and will be summarised in reports that will be available on the Council's website. Your personal details will not be included in these reports. I will not acknowledge receipt of your comments. Please use the Public Access system to track the progress of this application and find out the decision.

Yours faithfully,

Julie Roscoe
Director of Planning, Building Control & Licensing

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Who can comment on planning applications?

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?

They might – the Council has a legal duty to consider the views of the public, but your views must be relevant to planning.

How do I know what's "relevant to planning"?

Planning is mainly concerned with the physical aspects of the way land and buildings are used. Issues such as levels of activity, appearance, parking, noise, traffic or overlooking are relevant. Examples of issues which are not relevant include: effect on property values or fears of commercial competition. If it wants to refuse planning permission, the Council has to be able to show that some harm will result. The guide on the website provides more information about this.

Can I appeal if I don't like the decision?

No. Only the person who makes the application can appeal (to the Secretary of State).

Can I complain if I don't like the way I've been treated?

Yes. The Council has a complaints process and details about how to complain are available online at www.manchester.gov.uk/complaints. We always aim to deal with complaints quickly.

Anyone, but comments must be made in writing. Anonymous comments are not accepted.

Who is notified?

As a general rule those immediately adjacent to the development. We usually send out individual letters (like this one) although sometimes, notices are also put up near the site or in newspapers.

Who looks at my response?

The officer dealing with the planning application and other planning staff. Remember, anyone, including the person applying for planning permission, is entitled to read your comments. If the application is to be decided by a committee (elected members of the City Council), your views and others will be summarised in a written report, available for public inspection a few days before the Committee meets.

Will my views make any difference to the decision?
