Description

The application property does not have a post code. The Faraday Tower is located at the University of Manchester North campus on Sackville Street, Manchester. The Faraday Tower once formed part of a larger building which spanned across Sackville Street. The complex once housed the Chemistry Department although the tower has stood vacant since 2007. The four storey block which formed part of the building and housed mainly undergraduate facilities that was located on the opposite side of Sackville Street to Faraday Tower has been demolished and the land redeveloped with the Masdar Building. The former bridge link which connected the Faraday Tower with the Faraday undergraduate building has also been demolished. The Tower is in deteriorating condition externally and internally and is incapable of productive occupation. To the north, east and west of the site the land lies within the University of Manchester estate and forms part of North Campus. To the south of the application site beyond Sackville Street is the Mancunian Way flyover which is accommodated on a raised roadway aside a landscaped area.
